

Bernie Monksfield

I started Kleeneze in 2009 after being made redundant earlier that year. I was unsure it would work in my area but decided as nothing else was on the horizon to give it a go. I had been an Operations Manager so it was quite a contrast.

Within my first 4 weeks I was amazed to earn over £458 - which was far more than my outlay and I even received my kit money back on a promotion. The business has continued to grow and even when I was head-hunted by a company and went back to full-time employment I managed to earn over £400 per 4 week period.

Now in January 2010 I again faced redundancy but this time I had Kleeneze in the wings. Below is my latest and largest cheque and I have just had someone join my team. In my personal life my wife is having to do daily hospital visits to a family member which involves me doing all the school runs and often looking after our daughters - if I was in a traditional job I know they would not allow me the time I need.

Kleeneze is flexible and it works - I am the proof as are so many others in our team. Come Join Us.
