

Ken & Jen Jarvis

The last job I had was a Chauffeur and worked for a company that hired us out to whoever wanted our services; the work was very busy and very varied.

Peter, who was the owner of the company, was the only person that would give me a job after having a lot of illness and Heart problems.

I had to finish that job because of a previous back injury that was made worse due to a traffic accident on the M62; and after I was fit and able to start work, no one would give me a job; they could not get insurance on me due to ongoing health problems.

After doing nothing very much other than Clay Pigeon Shooting I saw an advert on the rear of Julie Cotton's car along with a phone number. I gave Julie a call and went to a group meeting to find out what was involved.

On seeing the presentation I immediately thought of "Amway, aaagghh" and after a chat with Ram, who convinced me it was not like Amway, I decided to try Kleeneze out.

Guess what? Nothing like the other name that should not be spoken (Amway) during the first few weeks I was making about £50 a week from the 21% and it has gone up weekly ever since. That was when my wife Jennifer decided to join me in the business and to be honest has done most of the hard work ever since and leaves me to do the driving and paper work.
